Steel and stainless steel

Located on Main Street between
Center Street and 100 S on lease since 2024

Artist Statement

I originally made a small version of this. I liked the simple lines and feel of it, and thought it would be fun to try it in a monument size. Using a rust patina is always interesting, as every piece of metal will take it a little differently. That's where the individual personality of the sculpture comes through.

Artist Bio

Dan spent 30 years welding stainless steel in the dairy and food processing industry. After honing his skills in that industry, he began following his true passion: creating metal sculpture. "

I enjoy taking what is normally rigid, structural steel and forming it into unrestrained, flowing lines, shapes, and forms. To me, this is like a second childhood, and I love every minute I can be creating sculpture."

After welding in the dairy and food industry, Dan is now following his true passion for creating contemporary metal sculpture. To him, this is like a second childhood and he is loving every minute of it.
