It has been 50 years since a section of the Bountiful Cemetery was created especially for honoring all children who have died too soon. From 1967 to 2017, nearly 400 babies have been buried in a special area of the Bountiful Cemetery. Many of these children are buried in unmarked graves. This unique part of the cemetery is now forever memorialized by “Close to Heaven,” a beautiful statue sculpted by Scott Streadbeck that will be dedicated on October 12th, 2017. Kyra Dunshee, whose son Cole is buried here, was inspired to work with Bountiful City and donors to make the statue a reality.

This memorial stands to honor all of the babies and children buried in this cemetery, no matter the location. It serves as a reminder to all that the lives of these little ones matter - they are dearly loved, and they will never be forgotten!
